

Herbal Extracts

Herbs are grown in large number of varieties in our country due to vast and wide variation in soil and climate. The extracts of these can be used as raw material for various food, cosmetics and medicinal formulation. Due to the damaging side effects of allopathic medicines and synthetic cosmetics the products based upon herbal extracts are gaining more and more significance due to their efficacy, naturalness and its matching with human body system without any damaging side effects. Food, cosmetic and fragrance industries are also big users of herbal extracts. Besides domestic market there exist a potential and growing export market also for the herbal extract. You can come in this project. There is very good scope for new investment.
